

MORNING APPEAL

SUNDAY.....JANUARY 29

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

As the Norcross bill can only become operative in the event of the Legislature agreeing that a majority of those who voted at the general election in 1890 cast their ballots for a Constitutional Convention and the courts sustain the action of the Legislature, why not test the question whether the publication of the amendments adopted by the Legislature of 1891, in the Statutes of 1891, answered the requirements of the constitution? Several, if not all of those amendments would doubtless receive the approval of the people. Their adoption would be the next best thing to a thorough revision of the constitution. If they were incorporated in the constitution a great saving could be effected to the tax-payers. If the publication is sufficient the present Legislature could adopt them and submit them to the people at a special election or, if deemed advisable to wait till then, at the general election next year.

An agreed case involving the validity of the publication of the amendments could be submitted to the Supreme Court, and on a plea of urgency the opinion of that tribunal would doubtless be rendered in time for the Legislature to act. Now that the election of United States Senator and of Warden of the Prison is over, the question of determining the validity of the amendments should receive attention that the people may know whether they may look for relief from that source, or, that failing whether a Constitutional Convention can be held without again submitting the matter to the people at an election.—Journal.

Startling News.

A revolution has occurred in Hawaii, the Government overthrown, a Provisional Government established and Commissioners are now on the way to Washington with a petition asking this Government to annex the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. All the Governments represented at Honolulu had recognized the new Government with the exception of Great Britain.—Chronicle.

The Sacramento Bee has one of the most extraordinary things in the way of obituary illustration ever seen in a newspaper. It represents a man stretched on a bier and covered with flowers. Alongside him a half-nude female weeps. On the other side is a group of angels in white robes, also broken down with grief. The man on the bier is labeled Creed Haymond, but the artist has made an exact picture of Blaine. The cut is inscribed: "When shall we look upon the like again?" Not soon, we trust, if the Bee has any regard for the artistic feelings of its Nevada subscribers.

New Plan for Lovers.

A Reno man has struck upon a plan which, he thinks, will make a millionaire of him in a very short time.

He has compiled a cipher code for the use of lovers. By the use of a dozen words sweethearts can send as much as an ordinary eight-page letter holds.

For instance, "alhetogra" means "Darling, my heart has been heavy since I last saw you, but when I again come under the flashlight of your star-like eyes, I will be myself again."

It is especially adapted to lovers who have to correspond clandestinely, and will also come handy when the telegraph must be used.

Congressman Fellows promises to create a sensation. He says it is charged that several millions of Panama Canal money was paid to American Senators and Representatives and the French Government promises the names.

The Central Pacific railroad company has declared a dividend of $1 per share, payable February 1st. A similar dividend was paid on August 1st, 1892.

It is said that the Virginia Enterprise, including the brick building in which it was published, can be purchased for $5,000.

Caton & Robinson, the new blacksmith firm, will soon have their shop ready for work.

"THE WELL."

Air—The Old Oaken Bucket.
How dear to my heart is the booze of old Storey,
When fondly by Flannery presented to view;
With Cutter's Kentucky in ambient glory,
And all those old brands that my infancy knew.
How dear to the throat,
That elongated bottle,
That glass stoppered bottle
That hangs in "The Well."
The scenes of the past like a dream come before me,
The bats of old Washoe, the jags of Gold Hill;
While memories plagues are hovering o'er me,
When Bob Hamill lobbied his anti-Treat Bill.
That temperance treasure,
That buncomb-bound measure,
That moss-covered measure,
Now lost in "The Well."
Oh, where is that Bi-Chloride college at Reno?
That makes sober men of inebriate wrecks;
That soon weans a man from his cards and his keno,
And sets him up square, with no after effects.
That Bi-Chloride college,
That boozers acknowledge
Will lift up the lunk
From the depths of "The Well."
